

THE ARTS SOCIETY RICHMOND

STUDY DAY ON FRIDAY 8 FEBRUARY 2019 – COST £20

PHOTOGRAPHY AS FINE ARTS: Should we accept that the very best photographs can be regarded as Art?

The question above is at the heart of our lectures which argue that photography can equal, if not to say exceed, more traditional disciplines in the key genres of portraiture, landscape and still life. Photography has, moreover, carved its own area of excellence in depicting the human condition. Ideas will be discussed with reference to the work of some masters of photography, including Henri Cartier-Bresson, Fay Godwin, Bill Brandt, Ansel Adams and Wolfgang Tillmans.

Our speaker, Brian Stater, is a Senior Teaching Fellow at University College, London, where he has lectured since 1997. An exhibition of Brian's own photographs has been staged at UCL, and he has written on architecture for a wide range of publications.
